News Rowley, RPA Golden Pipeline Sheldrake highlights water-quality tests Rowley, RPA Golden Pipeline Sheldrake highlights water-quality tests Tampa Bay's water suppliers are asking the public to report any illegal discharges of stormwater and wastewater into Tampa Bay. The "Golden Pipeline" project of Tampa Bay Water, Gulf Coast Water, Tampa Electric Co. and the US Army Corps of Engineers is looking for illegal discharges of stormwater and wastewater. In January, the area's water suppliers launched an "in-line" notice system to help with water quality in Tampa Bay. They're asking the public to send them any information on illegal discharges. "The Golden Pipeline's mission is to protect our bay," said Tampa Bay Water spokesman Tom Brill. "The more information we have, the better we'll be able to assess any impacts to our area's water. Illegal discharges contaminate our bay in many ways, including discharging stormwater, treated wastewater and raw sewage that's untreated, exceeding the daily loadings allowed from our sewage treatment plants. We are committed to working with our stakeholders to find solutions so the bay can remain a clean and fishable resource for the future." On Jan. 23, the Golden Pipeline team was among several water suppliers from the southern region to attend a water quality conference in Tampa. They were met with residents from Osceola and Marion counties, who said they're concerned about the impact illegal discharges are having on their watersheds. Water quality along the West Coast is being impacted by large discharges from Washington and Oregon, which are causing water pollution and negative effects to wildlife. "One of the biggest concerns on the West Coast is that if you have an event that creates a lot of runoff, whether it's from a rain event or a runoff that comes from agricultural runoff, then you're creating a lot of contaminant loads," said Andy Isenberg, manager of the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's Everglades and West Coast division. "You have a lot of rivers to back up, not only to the rivers but to Lake Okeechobee, which is where a lot of our bay water flows." Isenberg said the impacts come in the form of sediment, nutrients, fecal coliform and pathogens

Q: How can i pass credentials with repress? I'm running the following code: Reprex However, when I do this it gives me an error. XMLHttpRequest cannot load Response to preflight request doesn't pass access control check: No 'Access-Control-Allow-Origin' header is present on the requested resource. I've been looking at this for a while and I couldn't find a way to do it. I would like the credentials to come from an Excel sheet since it's easier to automate. Any help is very appreciated. A: The URL does not need authorization to access. I suspect you have a server setup to accept CORS that needs to be configured for such requests. It is either an Active Server Solution, some cloud or you are getting the URL to a (token) link and you need to have the authorization. If you have a token available, you can use withCredentials to get the response object from the call and it is parsed correctly, but this can sometimes fail with such kind of URLs. If you have a token, it is probably better to just use it. If you are currently working with this URL and don't have the credentials to the server, I am pretty sure that you will need to rewrite the URL from the error, but it seems that the the main issue is that the server/application cannot authorize the request. Have a look at this article and see if this is able to help with you CORS problem. Q: Can a shadow land unit move through terrain? Can a shadow land unit move through terrain? A: Can a shadow land unit move through terrain? Yes. A shadow unit doesn't have a terrain type, and a shadow unit can't use terrain for cover if it's not in the shadow of something that has terrain. If the unit is moved from a square with elevation -
