As a first guess, I use the Type class: Type TypeOfSystemObject = Type.GetType("System.Object"); On .NET Framework 4.6.2, this works for an object of type System.Object - as I expect. But it is wrong on .NET Framework 4.5.2, because it returns System.DBNull (the class in version 4.5.2) and not System.Object. I could solve the problem by checking if the class implements System.IConvertible - I would like to avoid this solution, because, not having the overload of Object.ToString(), a conversion to string is not possible. So how can I implement a method that will return the correct "System.Type" for all types in .NET Framework d0c515b9f4
